

| Question |     |      |  | Marking details                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | Marks available |     |     |       |       |      |
|----------|-----|------|--|----------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-----------------|-----|-----|-------|-------|------|
|          |     |      |  |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                        | AO1             | AO2 | AO3 | Total | Maths | Prac |
| 10       | (a) | (i)  |  | respiration and combustion use oxygen and produce carbon dioxide whereas photosynthesis uses carbon dioxide and produces oxygen (1)burning more fossil fuels - increase in combustiondeforestation - decrease in photosynthesis (1)more heat energy trapped in the atmosphere results in global warming (1) | 3               |     |     | 3     |       |      |
|          |     | (ii) |  | carbon dioxide (produced by power stations / factories) is trapped (1)award (1) for any of following <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• stored underground e.g. in old oil fields</li><li>• turned into liquid or solid</li><li>• reacted with another chemical</li></ul> accept other sensible answers                   | 2               |     |     | 2     |       |      |